The Buzz

Hardy is hale on KF Tour

Nick Hardy seems poised to break through. The Northbrook native and Illinois grad has been a pro two years, and has racked up three top 10s on the Korn Ferry Tour, the last step to the PGA Tour, since play resumed.

Hardy has finished as high as third, in the Bahamas in January, and is 19th in the standings, more important than the $109,000 he'd earned through Colorado. The top 25 jump to the big tour. (See Tour Guide on page 24 for more.)

CLOSE CALL: Glencoe Golf Club, usually a quiet spot save for the smack of club against ball, was the site of an attempted carjacking on July 2.

Three men who are suspected of stealing a car attempted to steal a women's car shortly after she entered the parking lot, their first stolen vehicle having gotten a flat tire near the course.

They waited as a group near the entrance to the course and accosted her after she parked, and opened the back door to get her clubs. She was shoved to the ground, suffering a bruised rib, and one of the three brandished a gun, police said.

She ran to a maintenance worker nearby, who began to chase them when they realized there were no keys in the car. In fact, her car, a Lexus, had no keys. She had the keyfob to start the car in her pocket.

One man, Zayveon Thomas, 18, of Beach Park, was charged with aggravated battery, possession of a stolen vehicle and attempted aggravated vehicular hijacking. Information on the other two suspects, for whom a search was conducted in the nearby Forest Preserve, was not immediately available.

ON THE MEND: Best wishes to Ed Stevenson, boss of the DuPage County Forest Preserve District (and still a PGA professional), who took a spill on a bicycle and has a bum shoulder to show for it. He missed a couple of Golfers On Golf radio shows on WCPT (820) as a result.

DIMINISHING RETURNS: If you read the fine print in what old pal Phil Kosin liked to call the national golf slicks, you'll discover that Golf has just cut back to eight issues a year and Golfweek is down to seven. Maybe the latter's name should be Golfoccasionally.

It's more than the pandemic that has caused the reductions nationally. It's also the rush to online reading and the move away from print, which is unfortunate. Even though ILLINOIS GOLFER is an online publication, our roots are in print – April 2012 was our so-far lone printed issue. While online, like radio and TV, offers immediacy, print offers both portability and permanence.

Once upon a time, there was Golf World (1947-2014) as well, and Golf Digest, like Golf, was a monthly. Now it numbers its issues to hide the infrequency.

At least the USGA has restarted Golf Journal after a long dormancy, and The Golfers Journal seems to have found a niche.

The PGA overborrowed on Horton Smith

Segregation in golf was and is abhorrent and has lasted for more than a century. It continues at many country clubs in this country and abroad.

In short, it has mirrored and continues to mirror society as a whole. This is not to accept it, but to understand the deep hole golf's early leaders dug for themselves and which more recent leaders have tried to climb out of.

In climbing, there is sometimes a misstep. The PGA of America's decision on July 2 to rename the Horton Smith Award to the generic PGA Professional Development Award is one.

In the announcement, displayed to the right, the association explained none of their reasoning, merely announcing the move "based upon review of its namesake" and saying the award had "racial ties," calling Smith "a defender of the 'Caucasian-only' membership clause.

His actions in 1952 show otherwise. We'll get to that.

PGA president Suzy Whaley said "the PGA of America is taking ownership of a failed chapter in our history that resulted in excluding many from achieving their dreams of earning the coveted PGA Member badge and advancing the game of golf. We need to do all we can to ensure the PGA of America is defined by inclusion."

Smith, fighting uphill, was trying to do just that. If anything, his cohorts failed to follow his lead.

He was one of the few in golf who tried to

PGA of America Board Votes to Rename the Horton Smith Award

PGA of America sheds historic award with racial ties

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (July 2, 2020) -- The PGA of America Board of Directors has voted to rename the Horton Smith Award effective immediately. It will be replaced with the new PGA Professional Development Award, honoring a PGA Member for outstanding contributions to professional education.

The PGA Board of Directors announced renaming the Horton Smith Award, which had been presented annually since 1965, based upon review of its namesake. Horton Smith, a two-time Masters Champion who served as PGA President from 1952-54, was a defender of the "Caucasian-only" membership clause, which was regrettably included in the PGA Bylaws from 1934-61.

The PGA Professional Development Award retains the previous criteria that showcases individuals who have demonstrated achievements in professional education.

"In renaming the Horton Smith Award, the PGA of America is taking ownership of a failed chapter in our history that resulted in excluding many from achieving their dreams of earning the coveted PGA Member badge and advancing the game of golf," said PGA President Suzy Whaley. "We need to do all we can to ensure the PGA of America is defined by inclusion. Part of our mission to grow the game is about welcoming all and bringing diversity to the sport. With the new PGA Professional Development Award, we will recognize effective inclusion efforts and honor those across our 41 PGA Sections who continue to promote and improve our educational programs. We look forward to doing more of both as we move forward."

The first PGA Professional Development Award will be presented Oct. 27-30, during the PGA's 104th Annual Meeting in Hartford, Connecticut.

move golf forward before it was fashionable. A sensation early in his career – he was added to the Ryder Cup team after winning seven times as a 22-year-old rookie – Smith, raised in Joplin, Mo., won the first and third Masters while associated with Oak Park Country Club, and largely on that basis was elected to the Illinois Golf Hall of Fame in 2017.

There was another reason his induction was welcomed. When he was president of the PGA of America in 1952, in those years when the body of golf pros was staunchly all-white, to the point where its by-laws said “only members of the caucasian race” could be members, Smith tried to bend the curve.

The stage was the 1952 San Diego Open. Bill Spiller and Joe Louis had entered at the invitation of the tournament organizers. The PGA of America tournament committee turned them down because of their race. Spiller, a prominent black pro, threatened a lawsuit. Louis, the former heavyweight champion and a fine amateur golfer, compared Smith to Hitler, saying “Horton Smith believes in the white race (the way) Hitler believed in the super race.”

Smith was stuck with upholding his association’s rules, but wanted to defuse the controversy. The week before Louis’ comments, he’d told Chester Washington, Louis’ secretary, that he was sympathetic with opening tournaments to all, and that he expected a resolution to strike the caucasian-only clause would be introduced at the next PGA annual meeting.

Alas, it took until 1961 – after the PGA was forced to move the 1962 PGA Championship from California because of the clause – for the association to see the light.

Smith was ahead of his peers by nine years, but knew those peers would not be easy to convince. Reported Golf World in its Jan. 18, 1952, issue, “Smith said he favors ‘evolution’ as the proper method for the Negro golfers to proceed, and that he objected to ‘revolution.’ He urged Washington not to press the PGA at present because a controversy would injure rather than help the Negro cause.”

So Smith brokered a compromise, putting Louis in the field because he was an amateur and thus wasn’t subject to PGA of America by-laws. Spiller was steamed, stood in front of the first tee before the first round to hold up play, but eventually relented at Louis’ behest. Louis played with Smith, and while neither made the cut, the point was made.

Smith went further. He set up a committee of leading black golfers, including Spiller, Louis and Ted Rhodes, to create an “approved list” of black players for tournaments, and got the PGA of America Tournament Committee to recognize their list by a 6-0 vote, with one member unable to be reached by phone.

That opened the way for Rhodes, Spiller and Eural Clark of Los Angeles to play the Phoenix Open the following week. Louis failed to qualify, though he, Rhodes and Charlie Sifford played in Tucson the week after. (Louis opened with a 69.)

The one setback Smith couldn’t overcome was the ability of tournament sponsors and host courses to bar blacks. That went on, but Smith in the space of two weeks did more to advance integrating the tournament circuit, and thus golf in general, than anyone had in the previous 64 years the game had been played in the United States. No other PGA president of the era did a thing.

Despite those actions, the PGA of America decided to take Horton Smith’s name off the award given annually by the national body and its 41 regional sections since 1965 to someone who has advanced continuing education for fellow professionals.

As previously noted, the PGA called Smith “a defender of the ‘Caucasian-only’ membership clause.” His actions in beginning to lift the ban were hardly those of a defender.

Recognizing the shortcomings of an organization’s past is welcome, and usually leads to an enlightened future. Acting in ignorance of the facts and painting with a broad brush often obscures the details.

Such is the case in the PGA’s action. Smith should not be pilloried as one of the many in golf who were against integration, but celebrated as one of the few who had the courage to do something.

U. of Illinois gifted Stone Creek in $15 million donation

Stone Creek Golf Club

NEW LIFE FOR URBANA LAYOUT Stone Creek did not open this year, but Illinois plans to have it up and running again in 2021.

BY TIM CRONIN

There was a time when the University of Illinois' golf facilities consisted of a 36-hole complex in Savoy designed by C.D. Wagstaff that dated back a half-century, the most distinctive features of which are the original push-up greens.

It was fine for the public and receives a lot of play. For preparing players to compete in the Big Ten, not so much, not when Ohio State and Michigan had first-class layouts that could test a player's every skill.

That's why Illinois went years without hosting the conference championship. The Fighting Illini's road to the top, aside from the recruiting and coaching of men's mentor Mike Small, began with its world-class practice center a block south of what the locals still call Assembly Hall, completed in 201X and improved since.

Now, there's another piece to the puzzle. On June 30, Illinois unveiled a deal that involved the school's athletic and foundation sides with the donation to the university of Stone Creek Golf Club in Urbana, plus all the vacant lots that the Atkins Group, which built the course as the centerpiece of a golf community in 2000, was never able to sell.

The athletic department has taken control of the golf course, which Atkins didn't open this year. It's being renamed the Atkins Golf Club at the University of Illinois. The foundation will get the 100-plus vacant residential lots, a commercially-zoned parcel and 70 undeveloped acres. The 300-plus acres are valued at $15 million, the university announced.

The men's and women's teams had played at Stone Creek since it opened. Now they can truly call it a home course. There will be a small renovation, and the clubhouse locker rooms will be improved.

"Our golf teams have always felt very welcome at Stone Creek, and we have been privileged to call Stone Creek our home for close to 20 years," Small said. "Now, with the gifting of the golf course, we can continue to improve and update the facility with the intent to rival the top collegiate golf courses in the nation."

Added women's coach Renee Slone, "We are excited about the possibilities this provides for our men's and women's golf teams and look forward to the opportunity of hosting future championship events. We greatly appreciate the generous support of the Atkins family to provide yet another resource for our student-athletes."

The Atkins family, which had been generous to the university in the past, made the move after investigating turning the golf course into a wildlife refuge. That meant with disapproval from more than a few of the residents.

"We were concerned about property values, and (owners of) the houses that were being sold were worried about it," Stone Creek resident Ty Clapper told the Champaign News-Gazette. "It's kind of a win-win for everybody."

In March, Spencer Atkins and Illinois athletic director Josh Whitman told many of the residents of a plan to reopen the golf course in 2021. With the deal gifting the property to the university, the plan will go forward.

"Working with them to develop the full breadth of this remarkable gift has been a true pleasure," Whitman said of the Atkins family. "We are excited about the future of the golf course and the benefits it will have for our varsity golf programs and, of equal importance, our entire community. We believe such a broad-based, visible presence from the University will help generate great value and stability to the homeowners and businesses in southeast Urbana."

This may not have been the original plan, Spencer Atkins inferred, but it was the one that made the most sense.

"As discussions progressed, it became clear to the family that a donation befitting our mission would be in line with the University's vision and our commitment to the community," Atkins said.

The family name is already on the school's tennis complex and baseball practice center, the latter opening next year.

"We are so grateful to Susie, Spencer, Todd, Suzette, and the entire Atkins family for their continued generosity to the University of Illinois and Fighting Illini Athletics," Whitman said.

Once the deal is final, Illinois will hire a company to managed the course and work on reopening the restaurant and banquet facility.

120TH WOMEN'S WESTERN AMATEUR

Thibault is tops

Triumphs in final at Prestwick

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM FRANKFORT

That the mastery of golf is a fool's wish was proven again on the morning of July 25 at Prestwick Country Club in Frankfort. The day before, Jackie Lucena of Chico, Calif., could do no wrong in routing her semifinal opponent by a 7 and 6 margin.

One sunrise later, she had to work for everything she got. It wasn't enough to overcome Brigitte Thibault of Rosemere, Quebec, who scored a 4 and 3 victory in the championship match of the 120th Women's Western Amateur on a sunny Saturday to take the crown back to Canada for the second time in four years.

Thibault, who never trailed, broke open the tight match by winning the 13th and 14th holes with pars and the 15th with a clinching birdie 4 to earn the right to lift the W.A. Alexander Cup.

The native of suburban Montreal, too, suffered from the vagaries of the game. It took her 21 holes to oust her semifinal foe on Friday, and she led 2 up after seven holes against Lucena, but a combination of bogey and double-bogey on the eighth and ninth holes brought Lucena back to square the match. The back nine on Saturday would decide it.

"I didn't want to get my hopes up, because I know that my game right now is kind of on a rollercoaster," Thibault said. "I feel like I gained a lot of momentum from yesterday. I just kept the faith. I kept fighting and didn't give up."

Thibault parred No. 10, taking the lead when Lucena couldn't save par. A change in attitude also helped.

"I think it was just like a switch," Thibault said. "I had missed a lot on the front, and I could feel how close I was to hitting it really good. I just switched it in my head and went into full focus mode."

Charles Cherney / Western Golf Association

O CANADA! Brigitte Thibault of Rosemere, Quebec, poses with the W.A. Alexander Trophy after winning the Women's Western Amateur at Prestwick.

She had plenty of previous successes to draw on. The 21-year-old Fresno State senior had won the Mountain West Conference title and the Ontario Women's Amateur last year, and was part of Canada's bronze medal team at the 2019 Pan American Games in Peru.

Scoring par at No. 13 to Lucena's bogey and par at No. 14 to Lucena's double-bogey moved Thibault 2 up with four holes to play. The birdie at the 15th settled the issue.

In contrast to Friday's semifinal romp, Lucena, a sophomore at California-Davis, never was better than level with Thibault.

"It was definitely a grind," Lucena said. "I wasn't having my best game. I was just trying to roll with what I had, and it ended up not working out.

"I definitely realized that I wasn't as free and as comfortable as in my previous rounds. Besides today, I felt phenomenal this week."

Such is golf. Just in making the final, she and Thibault were awarded exemptions to the U.S. Women's Amateur, slated for Aug. 3-9 at Woodmont Country Club in Rockville, Md. Thibault was already in the field on her world ranking, but Lucena will be making her first appearance in a USGA competition.

"I had a lot of confidence in my game coming into this, and I think I wavered a little bit (in the final match) when I hit some bad shots," Lucena said. "I was just so excited to make it to the finals."

The worldwide pandemic has, like with the rest of the world, left more question marks than answers in golf. That leaves Thibault's schedule in doubt.

"I'll go to the U.S. Women's Am, and then it depends on school," Thibault explained. "If

Charles Cherney / Western Golf Association

ON THE ROLLER-COASTER Jackie Lucena was brilliant in the semi but came up short in the final.

school is back, then I'll be competing in college. If not, I'll be heading to Europe for the British Am."

Most likely, someday soon, also to the LPGA Tour. Lucena might end up there as well.

The semifinals were contrasts in style. While Lucena had a cakewalk in beating Chelsea Dantonio, Thibault had her hands full with Sophie Burks of Tallassee, Ala.

It wasn't until Burks rinsed her tee shot on the 21st hole that the outcome became clear. Burks couldn't salvage par on the par-4, while Thibault two-putted for her 4.

Before that, a pair of brilliant shots kept Thibault in the match. She had driven to the left rough on the first extra hole, the ball nearly against the base of a tree. A daring sweeping cut shot not only got her to the green, but over it, into thick rough. Then a brilliant touch lob – hit just hard enough to float into the air, and not too much to run away on the green, which was tilted away from her – to three feet set up an easy par putt. Thibault lived on, halved the 20th hole with a par, and won with the par on the 21st.

The dramatic unscheduled golf came after 18 holes that featured five lead changes in the first 15 holes, and a series of up-and-down par saves by Thibault down the stretch. Her 60-foot two-putt on the 18th might as well have counted as a par save.

"From 13 on, I made a bunch of them that were kind of crazy," Thibault said. "I made one from a ledge, another from 25 yards out. But that one (on No. 1) was definitely crazy because I was so close to the tree. But I could see an angle, I was playing a cut, and if it didn't, it was in a bunker – and I like bunkers. I was fine with that.

"I felt I made so many up-and-downs, it was just meant to be."

Burks, a senior at Middle Tennessee State, said she did all she could against the plucky Thibault.

Her miscue on the 21st, a pulled tee shot that tumbled into Hickory Creek along the left side of the fairway, came after Thibault had belted a tee shot straight down the middle to the edge of where the fairway stops and the creek crosses. It had the gallery of about 40 Prestwick members in awe.

“Just got outplayed, which is always how you want to go down,” Burks said. “I played well all week, so I can’t be disappointed about that.

“She had been making some great up-and-downs all day.”

Lucena’s 7 and 6 dissection of Chelsea Dantonio had her back at the clubhouse while the second semifinal was still on the 13th hole. The margin was the largest in a Women’s Western Am semi since eventual winner Meredith Duncan’s 6 and 5 romp over Katie Futchter in 2000 at Flossmoor. Nobody had won 7 and 6 in a semi since Phyllis Otto beat Georgia Tainter in 1944 at Onwentsia Club. (Otto, like Lucena, fell in the championship match.)

Lucena won the first four holes, then birdied the eighth and 10th holes to go 6-up. A par on the par-3 12th finished Dantonio off.

“I’ve been playing great the whole tournament,” Lucena said. “I knew that if I stayed consistent and didn’t back off when I got to an early lead, I could get it done quickly. I knew I didn’t need to do anything more than what I was doing, so I just stuck with it.”

Dantonio had eliminated Mary Parsons of Delta, B.C., in the morning quarterfinal, ending the possibility of an all-Canadian final.

As so often happens, the medalist – in this case co-medalists – didn’t last long. Caroline Curtis of Richmond, Va., was ousted in the Round of 32, Lima, Peru’s Micaela Farah paying no attention to the 4-under 140 Curtis had posted in beating her 3 and 1. Blair Stockett of Jackson, Miss., the co-medalist with Curtis, lasted one more round, but fell in 19 holes to Taylor Kehoe of Strathroy, Ont., at 16 the youngest match-play qualifier.

Western Am sticks to plan

Famed Crooked Stick still the host, though few will see it

BY TIM CRONIN

When Garrett Rank won last year's Western Amateur at Point O' Woods in southwest Michigan, it was the first victory for a mid-amateur in the Western in 22 years, since Danny Green collected the old crown in 1997.

Green was 40 when he triumphed at the Point in 1997. Rank was a comparative tyke, only 31, but still the old guy in the usual field of collegians.

Now Rank's a year older, still an NHL referee though not selected to work the upcoming Stanley Cup competition. Instead, he chases a second straight title, which hasn't been accomplished in the Western Am since Justin Leonard went back-to-back in 1992 and 1993.

All the usual suspects from last year are back for the 118th edition, and Rank will see two of them up close when he commences the first qualifying round at Crooked Stick Golf Club in Carmel, Ind., on Tue., July 28. The others in his threesome are Davis Thompson of Saint Simons, Ga., last year's medalist, and Cole Hammer, the Western Am champion at Sunset Ridge two years ago.

This is the first Western Amateur at Crooked Stick, but it is no stranger to high-level play, both pro and amateur. John Daly won the 1991 PGA on the course co-founder Pete Dye tinkered with for decades. Lauri Merten won a U.S. Women's Open there. The American team captured a Solheim Cup. Fred Funk scored a U.S. Senior Open title there. And Rory McIlroy and Dustin Johnson won BMW Championships – a.k.a. the Western Open – there in 2012 and 2016, respectively.

From the tips, par-72 Crooked Stick can play 7,587 yards long, but no course is ever set up at the max, and even if it was, everyone is maddeningly long off the tee these days anyway. Even Rank, only the second Canadian to win was long enough at the Point when he needed to be.

Crooked Stick is hosting even as COVID-19 levels in the Indianapolis area have climbed the last two weeks. No spectators except for club members will be allowed, taking some bloom off the rose for the standout amateur competition.

The format is the most testing in golf: 72 holes of stroke play across three days, with 36 holes the third day for those making the cut. The top 16 advance to match play, four matches across two days for the finalists. It is as much a test of endurance as it is one of skill.

New life for Fyre Lake

Quad Cities layout gets new owner, and he has a plan

Fyre Lake Golf Club

FORGOTTEN GEM Fyre Lake in Sherrard, is modern golf in a classic setting. New owner Mark Krizic hopes to make the balance sheet as green as the turf.

BY TIM CRONIN

There's an old saying in the golf business: The third owner makes money.

Mark Krizic, 42, hopes to change the saying. He will be the fourth owner of Fyre Lake Golf Course in Sherrard, Ill.

The Ridge Country Club pro since 2009, he'll be leaving that post at the end of the year, having bought the financially star-crossed course in a small town just south of the Quad Cities.

"The last two weeks have been an emotional roller-coaster," Krizic said, thinking of the good-byes he'll soon be saying. "But I'm 42, and if I don't pursue my dream of owning a golf course, I'll be kicking myself when I'm 55."

Throw in his caddie years – the South Holland native first carried a bag at Olympia Fields when he was 13 – and Krizic is in the business 30 years. He met his wife at Ridge, and she's run the shop for a decade. That's 40 years of experience that will be trying to make Fyre Lake, as a place, the destination it should always have been.

“We’ll run it the way golfers want it to be run,” Krizic said. “We’ll have tournaments, player development programs, junior programs, women’s programs.”

FYRE LAKE

He’ll also have a Callaway fitting operation at the course, as he does at Ridge, complete with Trackman and the other accouterments of modern golf.

That’s the short-term improvement plan, which has already started with an uptick in course maintenance, from greens being rolled daily to other tweaks.

Long-term plans include a clubhouse. Fyre Lake was so cash-strapped after the course was built, the original owners brought in a big trailer in lieu of a clubhouse. The double-wide is still there.

“My enthusiasm for golf will trickle down to the Quad Cities and the community,” Krizic said. “Golf is all about people and customer service. I’m going to be there a long time.”

Krizic, who expects to lure some customers from the west suburbs as well as the Peoria area, is up against a difficult economy in a pandemic with a course that has a local market of about 382,000 to draw from.

With a weekday rate of $45 and weekend rate of $65, his main in-town competition is TPC Deere Run, home of the John Deere Classic. The local municipal courses are less expensive, but he may get a few players from the several private clubs in the area, including Davenport – site of this week’s Iowa Amateur – Crow Valley, Oakwood, Pinnacle and Short Hills.

Hawthorn Ridge Golf Course

LAST LOOKS Hawthorn Ridge, just south of Aledo, will close at the end of September.

Fyre Lake, designed by Nicklaus Design Group – though not Jack himself – opened in 2013. Developers Fyre Lake Ventures went bankrupt, and the bank it borrowed from went under as well. Todd Raufeisen bought the course out of bankruptcy in 2013 and couldn’t make a go of it either. In 2015, Rock Island mayor Mike Thoms and business partner Larry Whitty bought it at auction for $503,000.

They stabilized the operation, and put it up for sale at $995,000 this spring. What Krizic is paying – via a lease to purchase agreement – has not been disclosed, but courses have been going for half to three-quarters of the asking price in the Midwest in the last couple of years.

Hawthorn Ridge closing

While Fyre Lake has new life, nearby Hawthorn Ridge Golf Course near Aledo will shut down at the end of September. Opened in 1977, current owner Gary Baker, 72, decided to sell after nearly four years ownership.

The new owner has not yet been identified, but Baker confirmed the golf course will close.

The 155-acre property was marketed as both a golf course or a recreational facility. It will likely be the latter, as Baker was told by the buyer he had no intention to return it to farmland, which it was before Mitch Warwick converted a portion of his farm to golf 43 years ago.

Baker told the Moline Dispatch he preferred it remain a golf course, but the buyer offered full price.

Hawthorn Ridge gained considerable notice, earning a four-star rating from Golf Digest at one point. Designed by Chicago-area architect William J. Spear, it was recognized as a course worth going out of your way to play – and out of its way it was. Situated outside of Aledo, which is to say in the middle of farmland, it remains popular, but Baker said when he bought the course it wasn’t to run it forever.

Three Southern Illinois-Edwardsville golfers were recognized as All-America scholars by the Golf Coaches Association of America. Brooks Jungbluth (St. Joseph, Mo.), Parker McEachern (Keller, Tex.) and Presley Mackelburg (Reno, Nev.) have each earned the honor. SIUE has had 12 golfers earn the award over the past three seasons. “When we recruit student-athletes to SIUE one of our main goals is to become an All-America scholar,” SIUE coach Derrick Brown said. “I’m very proud of Parker, Presley and Brooks for achieving that goal. It takes hard work in the classroom but also on the course and I am happy for them.”
