The Buzz

More courses on the block

If the golf business is getting better, why are so many courses for sale?

It's because fewer players are playing less often. The return to pre-2007 numbers just isn't happening for many courses, especially those that don't offer tremendous playing conditions all the time. Leaving aside the senior set, those who are still in the game are getting more picky, and won't accept second-best turf.

Poking around several Internet real estate sites, we found these five courses for sale – and there are more, but the others aren't readily identifiable. Going from lowest to highest priced:

- Hickory Knoll Golf Course, a nine-hole, 1,900 yard, par 30 operation on 29 acres just outside of Lake Villa, can be yours for $550,000. Foreclosed on by its lending bank, the course on Monaville Rd. remains open.

- For $749,000, the Prairie Pines nine-holer just west of DeKalb can be part of your portfolio. Like Hickory Knoll, it is licensed for video gaming.

- The same price tag has been hung on the Dayton Ridge nine-holer in Ottawa, which hugs the north side of Interstate 80.

- Downstate, Red Hawk, an 18-hole operation on 150 acres between Pinckneyville and Tamaroa, is asking $900,000.

- Or, if you have real money, for $3.5 million (discounted from $12 million), the private Terrace Hill Golf

FOR SALE Hickory Knoll near Lake Villa is in play.

Course in Algonquin, 140 acres on Algonquin Rd., just west of Randall Rd., is also on the block. It's a Charles Maddox layout opened in 1985 and dotted with 15 ponds.

On the other side of the ledger, Klein Creek in Winfield, originally marketed at $1.95 million, went for $1.1 million or less when it finally sold, more than two years after lender Fifth Third Bank took over operations. Klein Creek had a better fate than Mill Creek, west of Geneva, which didn't even open this spring.

As time goes by ...

At press time, the WGA had not confirmed a report that BMW had reversed course and signed a three-year sponsorship renewal through 2022.

Funny how quickly the years go by when you're not looking. It was just last month, it seems, that we and others were lamenting the loss of the summer staple, the Western Open, uprooted to September, the name changed, the format different, and worst of all, fighting with football for attention.

Soon enough, the renamed BMW Championship had left Cog Hill at the behest of the automaker's executives, who wanted an upscale location – sorry, Lemont, they clearly never dined at La Dolce Vita or lunched at Nick's – to show off their cars.

It was off to Conway Farms in tony Lake Forest when in town and to luxurious clubs ranging from Bellerive near St. Louis to Aronimink near Philadelphia, to say nothing of Cherry Hills just south of Denver. All match up well with the best hangouts in Chicago-area golf.

BMW received plenty of air time on NBC, the Western Golf Association brought in more and more ticket-holders once the public caught on to the quality of the field and what was at stake, and, especially when on the road, sold corporate suites by the bushel. That helped the WGA and its Evans Scholars Foundation reach its goal of having 1,000 caddie-scholars in college at the same time – and do so a year early.

Olympia Fields Country Club

NAMELESS Olympia Fields is calling next year's tournament the "FedEx Cup Playoff Event."

BMW has been a solid supporter of the Evans program, but this is the automaker's last year as tournament sponsor. Next year at Olympia Fields, the the WGA will again host the equivalent of the PGA Tour's playoff semifinals – and the last real tournament of the season, assuming the convoluted scoring system planned for use in this year's Tour Championship is continued – but without the BMW logo plastered about.

The new sponsor? There may be one ready to be introduced at Olympia Fields on Monday. Perhaps there will be more than one sharing the marquee – can you afford a commitment of some $12 million to $15 million? That money is spread between the purse, the television commercials on the tournament and those before and after, and what sports marketers call activation – the layout for the corporate hangout during tournament week and that goes with it.

Perhaps BMW, the Tour and WGA are hammering out a deal for 2020 and beyond. Right now, it's just called "FedEx Cup Playoff Event."

While the brass work behind the scenes, let us tip the Hogan cap toward BMW for 13 years of first-class sponsorship, one that cost at least an estimated $150 million from start to finish. There were mistakes – leaving Cog Hill was the big one, those German-style flags cast too many moving shadows on greens, and the Euro-style scoreboard arranged by tee time was stupid then and is stupid now – but for the most part, the folks from Munich will have left a good impression. The new sponsor has much to live up to.

BYTE-SIZED ANNOYANCE: Just when you think you understand computers, there's a surprise. Ours came when switching to a newer computer when Old Faithful went on the blink. No data was lost, but – surprise! – the design program we've used across two computers wouldn't work on the new one from the same firm. That meant no regular digital July issue beyond the special edition that previewed the John Deere Classic, though our news coverage continued on the ILLINOIS GOLFER website itself.

Now, in the best Back To The Future move, we're designing on an older model that the design program can run on. So the coverage planned for July, plus everything for August, is in this jam-packed issue. And we're looking for a better Flux Capacitor. Enjoy!

ILLINOIS GOLFER COVER STORY

117TH WESTERN AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP

A victory for an old plugger

Garrett Rank trailed in all four matches, coming back in each to become the first mid-amateur in 22 years to win the Western Amateur.

PHOTOGRAPH BY TIM CRONIN

Garrett Rank skates out of the pack, upsetting form and foes to capture the 117th Western Amateur at Point O' Woods

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM MILLBURG, MICHIGAN

Garrett Rank was the only player in the 117th Western Amateur's Sweet Sixteen who didn't use a caddie. As a 31-year-old with, as he calls it, "the best job in the world," that of National Hockey League referee, he could afford a looper. But his father, his biggest fan, died five years ago.

"I saw a lot of mums and dads caddying for their sons out here this week," Rank said. "Ultimately, secretly, I pushed my bag around in my dad's honor, and felt like he was out there with me every step of the way."

His age indicates he's a mid-amateur. The Western Amateur was once speckled with mid-ams in the field and advancing to match play, but Rank was the first player 25-plus to crash the Sweet Sixteen since Nathan Smith, then 30, in 2009. Smith lost in the second round.

Rank's employment and language – "mum," especially – hints at Canadian roots, and sure enough, he's from Elmira, Ontario. Canadians in the championship match are almost as rare as snow in August.

On top of all that, Rank is a cancer survivor. Diagnosed with testicular cancer as a sophomore at the University of Waterloo, he had to drop the hockey half of his hockey-and-golf scholarship.

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

BUNKER BASH Daniel Wetterich celebrates holing out from a bunker on the 13th hole in the semifinals.

Once cleared of cancer and graduated, he enrolled in referee camp and quickly worked his way up to the NHL. And since 2012, when he lost to the aforementioned Smith in the final of the U.S. Mid-Amateur at Conway Farms Golf Club, and thus missed a trip to the Masters, summer has meant serious golf, almost always played against players younger than him.

"That's what's driven me in golf for the last seven years," Rank said. "And this is pretty much the Masters of amateur golf. I've been playing in this high-level stuff for seven or eight years and it's gotten me into some cool situations."

You know where this is leading, of course. Rank not only made the Western Amateur's vaunted Sweet Sixteen, he won the championship, scoring a 3 and 2 victory over recent Ohio State graduate Daniel Wetterich at Point O' Woods Golf and Country Club on Saturday, Aug. 3.

Within days, Rank's name will be engraved on the George Thorne Trophy, the same one featuring Chick Evans, Jack Nicklaus, Phil Mickelson and Tiger Woods, to fill out just one notable foursome. Oh, and Danny Green, the last mid-amateur to win. He was 40 when he won in 1997.

It's too good, but it's true. Rank trailed in all four of his matches, but rallied each time. He rolled in long birdie and par putts to win holes, birdie putts to halve holes, and generally out-gritted his opponents every step of the way. Not the longest hitter, he was more accurate than them, and at the Point, where quick greens put a premium on well-struck approaches, the fairway is the place to be.

In the final, Rank hit seven of 13 fairways across 16 holes. Wetterich hit four fairways. Rank only hit 11 greens to Wetterich's nine, but even some of his misses were calculated. For instance, going long with his scrambling third shot on the par-4 14th, where the cup was placed in a precarious spot on the back left of the massive false-fronted green. After a stylish chip, he missed a four-footer for par, but was able to match Wetterich for bogey after his miss for par. That kept Rank 1-up.

Wetterich won the fourth and fifth holes with birdies after a sloppy start and was 1 up, but lost the next two holes to a par and a birdie, then saw Rank drop an 8-foot birdie putt on top of his 16-foot deuce on the par-3 eighth.

That was big for Rank, and his tee shot to six feet from an impossible pin position on the par-3 ninth was bigger.

"I hit one of the best shots of the week to that back left flag," Rank said with a grin. "That was a pretty stout shot."

Wetterich conceded him the birdie putt and a 2 up lead at the turn after three-putting from 40 feet above on the ridge to the right, missing his second putt from eight feet.

Wetterich sank an 18-foot birdie putt on the 10th green to pull within a hole, but his putter cooled and the duo halved the next three holes, which went in Rank's favor. When Rank dropped a 10-footer on the 14th for his fifth birdie of the match to return to 2 up, Wetterich was up against it playing this hockey player-turned-referee.

"The secret to this week was coming from a very ultra-competitive family," Rank said. "I imagined I was playing my brother every match out there. He thinks he's better at golf than I am, so I was just trying to kick everybody's face in, because that's what I'd want to do to him if we were playing."

Thus, his door-sealing approach to five feet on the par-4 15th for his sixth birdie of the match – he was the equivalent of 4-under over 16 holes, including the usual concessions – that moved him to dormie 3. Wetterich needed to win every hole the rest of the way, and when he could only match Rank's par on the par-4 16th, it was time for golf's version of hockey's handshake line.

Rank advanced to the title match by beating hot-tempered David Laskin of Elk Grove, Calif., 2 and 1 in the semifinal. Wetterich knocked off Ricky Castillo of Yorba Linda, Calif., 3 and 2, in part by scoring an eagle out of a greenside bunker on the par-5 13th hole.

While Rank, now the leading mid-amateur in North America, insists he'll keep his day job while remaining an amateur, Wetterich will play in the U.S. Amateur, then go to PGA Tour qualifying and likely turn pro immediately after. It's a matter of when, not if.

"I know I have little more work to dial some things in and be more consistent, but I don't think I'm really far off," Wetterich said. "I feel I can do some really special stuff."

Rank will keep trying to beat up on the kids coming up.

“I find a lot of motivation with the success we (mid-amateurs) have in the different events,” Rank said. “We truly, honestly get a kick of rolling up to the first tee and the young kids going, ‘Who’s this old guy we’re going to spank today?’ Then we usually do a pretty good job of shocking them.”

Saturday was the payoff.

“I know how cool this is in amateur golf,” Rank said. “It hasn’t sunk in. I’m sure I’ll be even more proud than I am right now. But I’m so honored, so thrilled to win this tournament. I’ve had a lot of close calls in big events. To finally break through is huge.”

Before Rank’s surprise, the eyebrow-raiser was the failure of defending champion Cole Hammer to advance past the first 36 holes of stroke play qualifying.

He sank, his knees almost touching the tender turf of the Point’s ninth green, when his downhill-sidehill sliding 35-foot putt came within an inch of tumbling into the cup late on a perfect Wednesday afternoon.

He needed that deuce on the formidable 192-yard hole to advance to the 36-hole dash for the Sweet Sixteen. Instead, his par 3 for 1-under-par 69 settled him at 1-over 141 for the first two qualifying rounds, one more than the maximum needed.

Last year, at 18 and about to enter Texas, he was the co-medalist, then went to the 18th hole or beyond en route to capturing the title.

This year, at 19, it was hats off and handshakes with playing partners Chan An Yu and Isaiah Salinda, a signed scorecard, a long look across the green at the scoreboard to see how close he’d come while his dutiful caddie mom packed up his Texas-logoed bag and carried it to the parking lot.

But he already knew. He had fought his way back from an opening 72 – par for this classic Robert Trent Jones design normally but 2-over in championship configuration – to get back to even for the first 31 holes thanks to birdies on the Point’s third and fourth holes, his 12th and 13th of the day.

After a par on No. 5 came a wild swing on the sixth tee, an off-line shot that landed well in the rough and led to a bogey on what is now the Point’s No. 1 handicap hole. The killer bogey, as it turned out.

With the cut line holding steady, a birdie was needed down the stretch. Last year at Sunset Ridge, a good but short member-friendly course, birdies were plentiful. You could pick up a bushel on any given nine.

Not at the Point, where length doesn’t mean anything. The birdies flew away.

49TH JOHN DEERE CLASSIC

Frittelli finally breaks through

Euro tour vet holds off Henley and Landry to claim first win on PGA Tour

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM SILVIS

Dylan Frittelli is not a scoreboard watcher, but on the PGA Tour, the big screens are everywhere.

Thus, while Frittelli knew he was playing well on Sunday, July 14 at TPC Deere Run – six birdies in the first 11 holes and barely a bogey since Friday will give you that feeling – he didn't know precisely where he stood.

Until, that is, he lined up his birdie putt on the par-5 17th, a putt that would move him to 21-under-par.

“I looked down the hill to read my putt, and there was a giant scoreboard behind the pit,” Frittelli said. “I saw my name on top. I tried not to look at the rest.”

He didn't have to. He ran down the 11-footer for his seventh birdie of the day and 22nd of the week for a two-stroke lead, and the 49th John Deere Classic was effectively over.

“It definitely calmed me over the 18th tee shot,” Frittelli said.

He drilled it, and not even a so-so approach that barely made the front of the green, 46 feet from the traditional Sunday back-left pin placement, could fluster him en route to a 7-under 64 for 21-under 263. Hey, a three-putt par after driving the green on the downhill 321-yard par-4 14th brought forth a smile. Dylan Frittelli, who had previously lost his head under pressure, was in his happy place on Bastille Day.

“I don’t think many pros can do that,” Frittelli said.

It’s the mental game that separates the best from the rest at the top level. Everybody can hit the ball, and if some swings are unorthodox – hello, Matthew Wolff – at impact, everyone is in the right place when everything is working. When it isn’t, that’s where doubts creep in.

Frittelli has had those doubts. Never mind that he, as a senior at Texas, sank the winning putt when the Longhorns won the NCAA title with Jordan Spieth and Cody Gribble, who have preceded him as PGA Tour winners, Spieth first doing so at the Deere, on the squad.

Never mind that he’s won twice on the European Tour, plus on various other circuits. The PGA Tour was the goal for this 29-year-old South African, and now, he’s locked in for the next two seasons plus.

The pressure points were there on Sunday, but he didn’t show it as he had in the past.

“I was thinking in those (past) moments I was really stressed and feeling the adrenaline and there’s no purpose for that,” Frittelli said. “Just calm yourself down to the point you can hit good tee shots and hit it on the green and hopefully hit a good putt here and there.

“If you can block out those distractors or those things that get your emotions going, it makes it so much easier.”

That’s not quite on a level with Kipling on triumph and disaster and treating those impostors quite the same, but it worked for him.

Frittelli came from only two strokes off the pace to win, but at the Deere, it always seems like a climb to the top for someone not in the final pairing – he was third from last – is next to impossible. On this Sunday, with Russell Henley, out 2 1/2 hours before overnight leaders Cameron Tringale and Andrew Landry, racing to the lead via a 10-under 61 for a one-stroke lead at 19-under 265, anything was possible. That kept the gallery of about 20,000 buzzing.

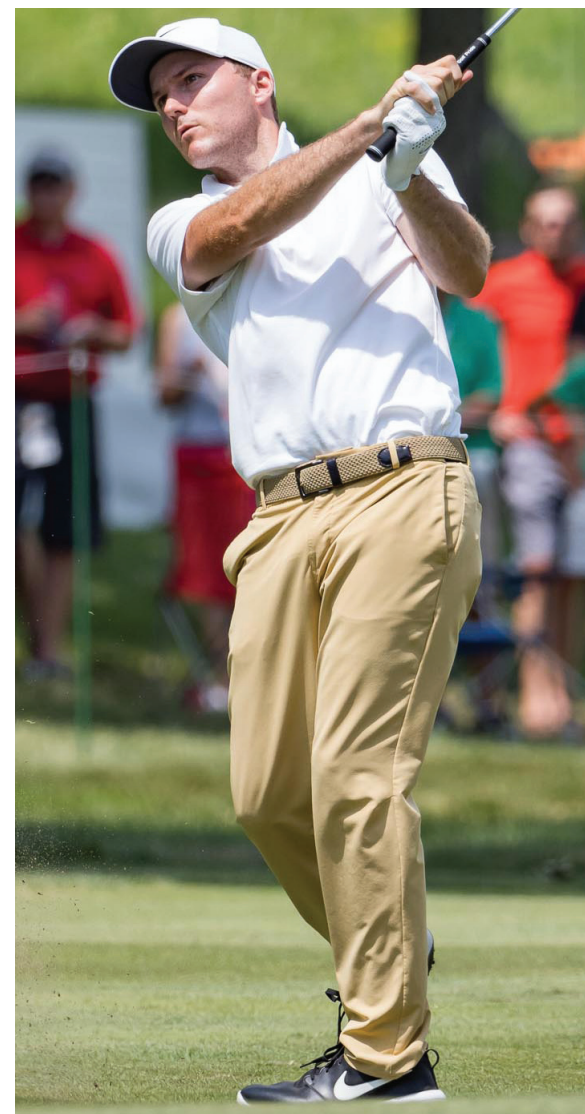

Frittelli chipped in from 17 feet for birdie on the par-5 10th to match Henley at 19-under, then sank a 20-footer on the par-4 11th to stand 20-under and gain a lead he’d never relinquish.

Little did he know. Bill Haas fired and fell back, stumbling to an even-par 71. Tringale fell to 2-over 73 and ended up in a tie for 16th. Landry’s 2-under 69 was acceptable but he needed a 66 to tie, and ended up in third at 18-under 266, with only Frittelli and Henley in front of him.

Meanwhile, Frittelli was hitting 11 of 14 fairways, 15 greens, needed but 27 putts, ranked first in strokes gained overall and second in putting and around the greens. “Drive for show, putt for dough” still applies – though his 344-yard drive on the par-4 17th showed who was boss in that department as well.

“It just proves the work I’ve been doing is the correct work,” Frittelli said. “Being 150th in the FedEx Cup throughout the season is so frustrating because you don’t see the results coming through. If you keep sticking to it – I made that change in my mental game and it thankfully came to fruition this week and helped me out.”

A few moments later, suddenly 48th in the playoff race, he was signing an Open Championship flag and getting ready to board Air Deere, the Boeing 767 that transported him and 13 other players to Northern Ireland and a short drive to Royal Portrush for the 148th Open, where he tied for 32nd.

Entering the final round, the talk was of Tringale and Landry, with one win – Landry’s in Texas last year – between them across 14 combined seasons.

Tringale, who came in 317th in the world ranking, has been around long enough to win about $10 million without collecting any silverware.

“Even with a lot on the line, I default to my instincts and not trying too hard,” Tringale said after his-under-par 65 elevated him to 16-under 197 with a lap to go.

Landry was in nearly the same situation. His Texas Open win notwithstanding, the 5-foot-7 Arkansas graduate is known for being 5-foot-7.

He entered 168th in the world ranking and 170th in the PGA Tour’s playoff standings.

Around Deere Run

Aside from Frittelli, the finisher most pleased with his outcome was rookie Collin Morikawa, whose tie for fourth on top of last week’s tie for second gave him enough points to score PGA Tour membership for the rest of the season. Now his goal is to finish in the top 125 by the regular-season finish, the Wyndham, to lock in a card for next year. ... Sam Saunders, Arnold Palmer’s grandson, tied for 10th via a closing 6-under 65. ... Landry’s 61 was the best Sunday score in Deere history by a stroke, and two better than any Sunday round since the 2001 move to Deere Run. ... The field tattooed Deere Run all week, even with the firmer and faster conditions than years past, with an average of 68.657 strokes. The weeklong average was 69.510.

119TH WOMEN'S WESTERN AMATEUR

Shipley beats the heat

Scores first national title over international field at Royal Melbourne

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM LONG GROVE

A big-time championship isn't usually decided on the eighth hole of the final match, but it felt that way Saturday, July 20, when Sarah Shipley rolled in a 21-foot uphill birdie putt for a 3-up lead on Antonio Matte at Royal Melbourne Country Club with the Women's Western Amateur title on the line.

Shipley, the fifth seed, hammered the putt home after third-seeded Matte had missed from about 35 feet on the par-3.

She increased the margin to 4-up by winning the ninth hole with a par, and kept the pressure on by halving the 12th and 13th with par-saving putts of 12 and 15 feet.

"There were a couple breaks I got," said Shipley, who thought the putts were closer to 30 feet. Pressure creates odd visions at times, but she saw the center of the cup clearly all the way.

"Those were a little stressful, but I got the job done," Shipley said. "I was feeling really confident, just trying to get out ahead early."

The 119th championship match ended on the green of the par-5 15th hole. Shipley hit her third shot to four feet below the hole, and after Matte missed her birdie opportunity from about 12 feet, conceded the birdie to Shipley and shook her hand, setting the margin at 5 and 3.

Shipley adds her name to a glittering century-plus list of champions, including Ariya Jutanugarn, Stacy Lewis and Nancy Lopez. After the award ceremony, Shipley studied the trophy and the names on it carefully.

"It means a lot," Shipley said. "It was a really tough competition. It was never easy at all. I had to grind the whole time. It tested my mental and physical game with all the heat.

"It makes me feel good about my game but also shows I can improve it more."

Shipley hit most of the fairways and greens she looked at in the final two matches and made the requisite par-saving putts, along with the birdies. If there's room for improvement, only a perfectionist could find it.

Entering her senior year at Kentucky, 21-year-old Shipley didn't give Matte, a 16-year-old from Santiago, Chile, a chance, winning the first two holes with birdies to take command. From then on, the heat was on Matte even more than the heat index of 108 beating down on the players and the gallery.

"She played very well this afternoon with me," Matte said. "She's a nice champion."

Shipley advanced via a 2 and 1 semifinal victory over Maria Bohorquez of Colombia, going 2-up on the 13th hole with a par and halving the next four holes, while Matte beat Brooke Tyree of Sulphur, La., 4 and 3 in the other semifinal.

“I made a few important putts in the morning,” Matte said. “This afternoon, I missed a few birdies.”

Matte needed 21 holes to subdue Maddison Hinson-Tolchard in the Round of 16 but otherwise breezed to the final, while Shipley was taken to the 18th hole by Julie Houston in the quarterfinals. Both were trying to beat the heat on a weekend where the mercury climbed to 94 and the heat index reached 108 on Saturday. By that point, a breeze doesn’t help unless it’s to imitate standing in front of a blast furnace.

Even the players who hailed from warmer climates than Chicago were feeling it on Friday.

“I don’t think I’ve sweated that much in how long,” Brooke Tyree of Sulphur, La., said after her 1-up victory over Tristyn Nowlin, last year’s runner-up. “It was hotter here than Louisiana.”

Tyree knows heat and humidity, so going to Texas A&M – College Station, Tex., is not known for cold fronts – was a natural for her. But Friday was something else.

Tyree was feeling it down the stretch. She built a 3-up lead on Nowlin through 13 holes, but lost the par-3 14th, and the two par-5s on the back nine, the 15th and 17th, with 6s to Nowlin’s 5s.

“I hit a bad chip on 14 and three-putted 17,” Tyree recalled.

Shipley beat Catherine Caudill, 3 and 2, in the Round of 16 before dispatching Julie Houston of Allen, Tex., 2 up in the quarterfinal cauldron, the first of two straight double-match days.

“In school, we play a lot of 36-hole matches, but not in 100-degree heat,” Shipley said. “The Shipley never trailed Houston, but needed a birdie at the last to finish her off because she missed an uphill 5-foot putt to win the match on the 17th green.

“In Colombia, it’s not that humid,” Bohorquez said.

70TH ILLINOIS OPEN

Quite the wedding gift: an Illinois Open

Newlywed scores second state title on eve of nuptials

BY TIM CRONIN
REPORTING FROM GLENVIEW

Three days before his wedding, David Cooke was the guest of honor at a special reception. The one for the 70th Illinois Open champion.

Cool customer Cooke could have been more nervous waiting for bride Claire Corbitt to walk down the aisle at the open-air chapel in the Carolina foothills the following Saturday than he was tooling around The Glen Club in the course of his four-stroke victory over Nick Hardy on Wednesday, Aug. 6. Cooke's final-round 5-under 67 placed him at 13-under 203 for the three-day cruise around The Glen Club and Ridgemoor Country Club, and earned him a tournament-record first prize of $23,768.

That jackpot will take care of the honeymoon and, perhaps more important, his entry fee into PGA Tour qualifying.

Cooke is the fourth player to win the Illinois Open as an amateur and a professional, joining Rick Ten Broeck, Gary Hallberg and Gary Pinns. He won by five at Royal Melbourne in 2015 with a final-round 63.

"It's great to win as a pro," Cooke said. "It makes me feel like I'm heading in the right direction."

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

HONEY, I WON! Thanks to his mom, David Cooke with a quick Facetime chat with bride-to-be Claire after capturing the Illinois Open at The Glen Club, three days before the wedding.

Cooke's game plan was simple: avoid bogey. He did, and even with just one birdie on the front side – a two-putt bird on the par-5 fifth – his lead was less than three strokes for only a few minutes. Hardy tried to put the pressure on, but even with four birdies in his first six holes he was 6-under to Cooke's 9-under. His opening 67 at Ridgemoor was a comfortable cushion.

"I knew having a three-shot lead over a couple guys, somebody was going to have to come get me," Cooke said. "I just wanted to make sure I didn't come back to them, so I was just playing smart. Most important, I was just trying to stay in play and not make any silly errors.

"The back nine (4-under 32) was good."

Hardy's 6-under 66 was the round of the day, getting him to 9-under 207, one less than the target score he envisioned in the morning. It was still worth $13,667.

"David played great this week," Hardy said. "He got off to a great start at Ridgemoor and never looked back. I stubbed my toe a bit on the first round and had a poor finish yesterday, and that kinda killed me. Even 10-under wasn't going to sniff it."

Hardy piled up eight birdies, including a kick-in birdie on the par-3 11th when his 6-iron stopped a foot from the cup, but two bogeys slowed the charge. Like Cooke, he'll be chasing a Korn Ferry Tour card in the fall. Until then, he'll practice.

"There were a lot of positives this year," said Hardy, noting his U.S. Open appearance and a mini-tour title in Oklahoma worth $20,000. "I had a lot of tough breaks. I had my moments, but there's a lot of things in my game I need to address."

The short game is Priority A for Hardy, but he remains confident he can get on the PGA Tour.

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

ON THE CUSP Nick Hardy rallied to take solo second with a closing 6-under 66 at The Glen Club.

"Once I can really dial that part of my game in, I'm as good a ball-striker with my driver and irons, but once I get good from 120 (yards) and in, I think I'm right there," Hardy said. "I'm very optimistic. I feel great about my game."

Mistwood head professional Frank Hohenadel took third with a 69 for 209, earning $8,319. Bryan Baumgarten and Jordan Less tied for low amateur at 6-under 210, joined by Tim "Tee-K" Kelly, who pocketed $5,960. Bloomington's Brandon Holtz, a runner-up the last two years, was seventh at 5-under 211.

The tournament's first two days were split between The Glen Club and Ridgemoor, the private club positioned between Chicago and Norridge that hosted the 1942 Hale America National Open, but not a whole lot else since.

Players who expected to tear the layout apart were roundly disappointed. It played tough thanks to the tightness of the layout and some pernicious pin positions.

Cooke had opened there with a 5-under-par 67 in the morning, taking the lead for some five hours before Chris Boyle, a 23-year-old assistant at Balmoral Woods, came along with a 65 at The Glen Club for the first-round lead.

"I'm going for all the par 5s in two, stay aggressive all day long," Boyle said of his Ridgemoor manifesto. That didn't work. He exploded to a 79 and was no longer a factor, eventually tying for 34th at 4-over 220.

Since winning the Illinois Open as an amateur in 2015, Cooke has graduated from North Carolina State, turned pro, and gained partial status on the European Tour, plus full status on the European Challenge Tour, which has high expenses and low returns.

"I've played twice in Australia and once in Kenya,” said Cooke, who has earned $2,165 for his toil.

Neither country is in Europe, which suggests the tour should consider a name change, but Cooke, a native of Bolingbrook, was right at home at Ridgemoor .

“Kind of frustrating, but I’m definitely not upset with it,” Cooke said of his eight-birdie, three-bogey round. “I think 67’s pretty good at this course. It’s a little different style than The Glen Club. You’ve got to hit a lot of the trickier golf shots here, but the greens are awesome and I made quite a few putts.”

Cooke opened on the back nine as if he’d obliterate the course record of 62, set by Ben Hogan in the 1942 Hale America and subsequently matched by then-member Bob Zender. He birdied Nos. 10, 11 and 12, and after a bogey on the par-3 13th, birdied the next two holes and the par-3 18th to go out in 5-under 31. But an even-par inward half brought him back to earth.

“I made a few really good putts where you’re just trying to cozy them up there and they fell in,” Cooke said. “I made one on No. 9, a 15-20-footer I had to play up the slope and back down.”

He made it to save par. Cooke, like most of the field, had never seen Ridgemoor until a practice round. That was an eye-opener.

“You’ve got to make sure you pick the right spots,” Cooke said. “There’s definitely worse sides of the holes to be on than others. There are slopes on the greens you definitely don’t want to mess yourself up on.”

Kuhl opened with 70 at Ridgemoor, coming off an appearance in the Western Amateur at Point O’Woods near Benton Harbor, Mich. He saw similarities in the two courses that helped his game.

“Some of the tee shots are very similar to the Point,” Kuhl said. “I’d say the Point is a little tighter. These greens are a little better. But they’re similar, which is a nice transition coming from that tournament to here.”

Another similarity was the set-up. While Kuhl didn’t make match play and the Sweet Sixteen, there are few easy cup placements at Point O’Woods. The same was true of the setup at Ridgemoor.

“The pins were really, really hard today,” Kuhl said. “I wasn’t expecting that coming in. They were tucked. I just tried to play smart all day.”

25TH PHIL KOSIN ILLINOIS WOMEN'S OPEN

Precise Porvasnik prevails at Mistwood

Holds off charging Jeray to score second victory as pro

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM ROMEVILLE

Jessica Porvasnik knew where she stood. She wasn't quite sure if she could believe the leaderboard she saw at the 16th tee of Mistwood Golf Club on Wednesday, July 17. That meant one thing: go for broke.

"If I could get one or two more to fall on the way in," Porvasnik said. "You've just got to stick to your own game and try to make as many birdies as you can."

At 4-under and among the leaders at that stage, she came close at the par-3 17th, narrowly missing a birdie putt, and came through at the last, sinking a 15-footer for birdie on the par-5 closing hole for 2-under-par 70 and a total of 5-under 211 for a one-stroke victory in the 25th Phil Kosin Illinois Women's Open. Porvasnik triumphed over Mistwood teaching pro Nicole Jeray (closing 71), Kasey Miller (73) and amateur Monica Kaho Matsubara (73), the recent Northwestern graduate, all knotted at 4-under 210.

"That was special," said Porvasnik, who graduated from Ohio State in 2017.

It was also a surprise to observers. A scoring snafu on the first hole, unknown until her card was signed, credited her with only a par on the first hole when she had birdied instead. She know, and Jeray knew, but those watching thought her birdie at the last was to tie the rest at 4-under, not for the victory.

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

Porvasnik, a Sylvania, Ohio, native, had won a mini-tour tournament in Toronto last year, and has had some high finishes in 2019, including a top 10 in the Colorado Women's Open, but had yet to grab a trophy this season until arriving at Mistwood. Making the cut in the LPGA tournament in Toledo the previous week, making $4,085, and winning at Mistwood – with the $5,000 first prize – has made this her favorite, and most lucrative, fortnight of the year.

"Last week, playing with some of the best players in the world, that was cool," Porvasnik said. "It's cool to know you're not far off."

Jeray had fallen four strokes behind leader Kasey Miller after a bogey on the par-4 11th, but began a three-hole birdie binge with a 4-hybrid to 18 inches on the par-3 14th, the beginning of Kelpie's Corner. Sinking consecutive 10-footers for birdie on the next two holes brought her to 4-under, matching Porvasnik and a stroke behind Miller.

"I was charging, then I woke up," Jeray said.

A good par save at 17 was followed by a poor approach at the last that left her at the edge of the green. She two-putted for par from there.

"She stuck a couple in there," Porvasnik said. "She birdied the three in a row, so to put it on the last green and sink the putt was really cool."

Jeray at least rallied to get a share of second. Her fellow 4-under finishers did not.

Miller, a stroke ahead at the turn, bogeyed the par-5 15th and par-3 17th to drop to 4-under, and will be kicking herself on the way home to Ohio. Matsubara can also play the “what if” game. She would have tied Porvasnik and forced a playoff but for her bogey at the last after driving out-of-bounds. She had birdied the 17th.

Anna Alpert Lund tied for fifth with amateur Sarah Busey at 1-under 215, and had the shot of the day, an ace on the 158-yard par-3 ninth hole. Samantha Postillion’s 3-under 69 was the day’s best round.

This year’s IWO had a format more akin to the old days of golf, with 36 holes the first day and the final 18 on the second. That grind saw Monica Kaho Matsubura, a recent Northwestern graduate who has yet to turn professional, share the lead with Kasey Miller of Findlay, Ohio and amateur Sarah Busey of Racine, Wis., at 5-under 139 at sunset.

Matsubura was cruising along in the second round, 7-under through 33 holes of the double-round opening day, and leading by two strokes. She had survived two bouts with Kelpie’s Corner.

Then the 16th hole happened.

“I just got in my own head,” Matsubura said.

The resultant double-bogey 6 and a pair of closing pars dropped her to a share of the lead with Miller and Busey, all of whom enjoyed a two-stroke advantage on Jeray and Porvasnik.

“The second nine I tried to play a little bit more aggressive,” said Matsubura, who opened with a 1-under 71. That was working – she birdied six of the first 13 holes – until her travails at the 16th. “I feel I still left a few shots out there.”

Miller had a like attitude about birdies flying away uncaptured.

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

CLOSE SECOND A barrage of three birdies on the back nine pulled Nicole Jeray into a tie for second.

“The course plays pretty short,” Miller said of Mistwood, which is set up at 5,961 yards. “I had a lot of wedges in, and I was sticking ’em tight, lots within 15 feet. Man, if ...”

Miller took full advantage at the par-5 15th, cutting the corner on the 504-yard dogleg over water and hitting her second shot close to set up an eagle putt. That placed her at 5-under, where she stayed to complete her second-round 69.

Busey scored 69-70, with a bogey-free opening circuit and a more random second round, including three bogeys, two of them on par 5s. But, she said, she putted exceedingly well, including a number of critical par-savers.

Farnam pounces when Perkins falters*Illinois State standout surrenders six-stroke lead in final round at Cantigny*

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM WHEATON

Ethan Farnam wasn't out of it starting the final round of the 89th Illinois Amateur, but he wasn't in it either.

He was four strokes behind 36-hole leader David Perkins of East Peoria, the Illinois State standout who had won the CDGA Amateur last year and was runner-up in that this year.

Engrave the Louis Emmerson trophy?

Not quite.

Farnam, like everyone else, failed to pressure Perkins, going around Cantigny Golf's wind-blown Woodside nine in even-par 36. Perkins, after a birdie on No. 2 expanded the margin to five strokes, was 10-under. Then Farnam bogeyed No. 3 and trailed by six.

Hand out the trophy?

Not yet.

Then golf happened. Farnam, a 20-year-old Crystal Lake resident whose 63 a fortnight earlier set the course record for the revamped Crystal Lake Country Club, nibbled at Perkins' heels. A deuce at the par-3 eighth, where Perkins bogeyed for the second time in three holes. A four at the 600-yard par-5 11th.

Still, Perkins led by two with six holes to play. What could possibly go wrong?

Everything. And on the fourth hole of the

Nick Novelli / CDGA

YES! Ethan Farnam exults over finishing off the Illinois Amateur at Cantigny.

Lakeside nine, the par-3 13th for the tournament, no less, where a bunkered tee shot led to a thinned sand wedge that sailed over the green, and was followed by a bad chip.

“I was lucky to make a four-footer for double,” Perkins said.

Farnam was more than lucky. Amidst Perkins’ chaos, he rolled in an improbable 70-footer for birdie.

The three-stroke swing put Farnam in the lead by one. After a 6-foot birdie at the par-4 14th, he led by two, and kept that margin the rest of the way, scoring 3-under 69, the day’s best round, totaling 8-under 208 to capture his first Illinois Amateur. Perkins, who closed with a 75, shared second with Jordan Less of Elmhurst, who birdied four of the last five holes en route to a 70 in the contest shortened first by a heat warning and finally by thunderstorms.

“I came back without him losing a ball, and I thought that was the only way I had a chance,” Farnam said. “But I started lighting it up with my irons. Hit a bunch close.”

Plus made the cross-country birdie on the 13th, one of five birdies in his last 11 holes.

“That big swing on 13, that’s just momentum,” Farnam said. “David just happened to catch the bunker shot a little thin. A crazy swing, but I felt I took it in stride well.”

For Perkins, whose bogey-free first 36 holes included seven birdies and an eagle, the double-bogey was an unrecoverable body blow.

“I wouldn’t say I lost my cool, but I definitely let that hole get to me a little bit,” Perkins said. “I hit it in the upslope of the bunker, didn’t hit a good shot, flubbed my next one. With him making the 60-footer, it’s just demoralizing. I missed a lot of putts and had a couple bad swings.”

Nick Novelli / CDGA

GUTTED David Perkins can’t believe what happened to him on the back nine at Cantigny.

At least three times, including on the par-3 17th, Perkins left a potential birdie putt a couple of feet short. Those were killers as much as the fateful double on the 13th.

Farnam won the Illinois Junior at Makray Memorial four years ago and beat many of the same players he knocked off Thursday, including Perkins and Less, in that affair. He spent one year at Northwestern without a scholarship, then transferred to St. Mary’s (Calif.).

“It’s definitely a step up from the state junior, but as a progression from college, it almost feels like the same level,” Farnam said. “It’s really good to feel that growth. It feels nice to be atop the leaderboard, that’s for sure.”

BMW CHAMPIONSHIP PREVIEW

The Big M welcomes the world

Medinah's famed Course No. 3 hosts top players for first time since 2012 Ryder Cup

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM MEDINAH

There's a feel at Medinah Country Club like that at no other big club in the Chicago area. Not even Olympia Fields, the south suburban behemoth which once boasted four courses, or Cog Hill, which boasts that many layouts today, coaxes a similar spark when pulling through the gate.

Only Butler National packs a similar punch on the course, the notion that a string of numbers resembling a Zip Code – something like 85647 – could appear on a scorecard starting at any hole. But Butler doesn't have the scale of Medinah.

Apologies to Frank Mahovlich, but the place's nickname should be the Big M. Everything about it, from the rococo clubhouse in which Richard Schmid melded old-world architecture into a concoction out of the Arabian Nights, to the rolling land upon which Course No. 3 is laid, speaks to Daniel Burnham's dictate: "Make no little plans; they have no magic to stir men's blood."

Medinah stirs the blood.

It offers tremendous vistas. The view from the 13th and 17th tees over the creek flowing from Lake Kadijah and across to the greens and beyond are breathtaking.

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

UNIQUE IN GOLF The 95-year-old clubhouse at Medinah Country Club stands alone.

It offers tremendous opportunity to excel or to fail. Just ask the members of the European and American Ryder Cup teams, who seven years ago next month participated in the most amazing six hours of golf in history, when the sure-thing American victory was thwarted by the greatest road rally in Ryder Cup annals. Medinah No. 3, especially the back nine, was the battleground.

It has history lurking at every hole. On these golden acres, Bryon Nelson, Cary Middlecoff, Lou Graham and Tiger Woods all triumphed in major championships, Woods doing so twice, and most recently, in the 1999 and 2006 PGAs.

It was here that Hale Irwin did his tying lap around the 18th green after his 40-foot putt found the cup, setting up his successful playoff bid against Mike Donald to win the 1990 U.S. Open.

It was here, out in the rough to the right of the 16th fairway, that Sergio Garcia hit his hooking approach to the green perched atop a hill from the base of a tree during the 1999 PGA. Garcia isn't here this week, having failed to qualify, but neither is the tree, cut down after too many hackers tried to duplicate Sergio's slash and chopped at its roots.

This week, it hosts the next best thing to a major championship. The Western Golf Association's BMW Championship starts on No. 3 on Thursday morning, featuring 69 of the eligible 70 players – only 55th-ranked Kevin Na is missing, as he's on baby watch – with several things at stake:

1. The opportunity to be 116th champion of a legendary tournament whose underpinnings as the Western Open dates back 120 years, to 1899.

2. The chance to be one of the fortunate 30 who play for riches beyond all dreams next week

Tim Cronin / Illinois Golfer

THE REWARD This is Medinah's replica of the J.K. Wadley Trophy. The winner lifts the original.

at East Lake Country Club in Atlanta.

3. For a select few, the chance to dislodge Brooks Koepka from his likely crowning as the player of the year.

Koepka is here, of course, seeing Medinah in person for the first time. After his pro-am round on Wednesday, he detailed a simple plan of attack:

“Try and put the ball in the fairway,” Koepka said. “You put it in the rough, it's so thick, you're going to have problems controlling your distances and hitting the greens. The greens are ... sloppy, a lot of back to front, and if you miss it on the wrong side on some of these holes, you're going to be in for a long time.”

For mere mortals, the key to staying alive at Medinah is clearing the water on the three par-3 holes, the second, 13th and 17th, hoping to stumble back to the clubhouse with at least one ball remaining. For the field chasing the $1.665 million first prize from the kitty of $9.25 million, Koepka is right. It's fairways and greens.

Woods, having pronounced his back and body as a whole “way better” than it was last week, when he withdrew from the Northern Trust tournament after 18 holes with an injury to his oblique, has the happy memory of his two PGA triumphs to fall back on, but it's a bigger ballpark than it was then.

“It's a lot longer than I remember,” Woods said. “No. 13, it's a big hole now, and they moved up (the tee on) 15. Now it's drivable. Before we were hitting 2-irons down there from the back tee.

“Joe (LaCava, his caddie) was kind of reminding me where it was (at the Ryder Cup) when we played here and some of the changes they've made since then.”

Ian Poulter has an even more recent happy memory. His inspired play, especially on Saturday, kept the dream of a Ryder Cup comeback alive within the European team room before the comeback that made the dream reality.

“Just walking in the locker room remembering the sing-song, the chants, the hug with Ollie (captain Jose-Maria Olazabal), where my locker was. The memories start flooding back on what was an incredible week.”

Whoever wins this week will have the same feeling, and join a group including Byron Nelson, Jacky Cupit and Billy Casper as winners of the Western Open, which has evolved into the BMW Championship, at Medinah.

Casper’s triumph, in 1966, was the most unusual in that it came the week after – or later in the week of, as it were – his victory in the U.S. Open. He knocked off Arnold Palmer in an 18-hole playoff at the Olympic Club in San Francisco on a Monday, jetted to Chicago overnight, visited Mayor Daley on Tuesday, saw Medinah for the first time in the Wednesday pro-am, and raced to a second victory in six days.

As least he didn’t need a police escort in, as Rory McIlroy did on the Sunday morning of the 2012 Ryder Cup. McIlroy overslept and was raced to the course in a squad car now owned by, of all people, Poulter.

“The interior got an overhaul,” Poulter said. “It’s got Rory’s signature etched into the seats and an engraving of the Ryder Cup.”

McIlroy has fond memories of Medinah not only for that, but because he met Erica Stoll, the woman who would become his wife, at the club. She was working in the PGA of America transportation department during the Ryder Cup.

“She was in the car park checking us in and out,” McIlroy said. “I did a First Tee event here a couple years ago with Luke Donald, and we came here so that was sort of our first time back. It’s cool to look around and think about that week, and obviously everything that’s happened since then.

“It is pretty cool.”

Pros retake rescheduled Radix Cup

Biggest margin for Illinois PGA contingent in 22 years

FROM IG NEWS SERVICES
REPORTING FROM RIVER GROVE

It was a victory delayed, not denied. Vexed by a ThorGuard system that warned of thunderstorms that never appeared on the original date, the top pros and amateurs in Illinois golf returned to Oak Park Country Club on July 25 for another try at playing the 58th Radix Cup.

The Illinois PGA Section professionals prevailed, routing the amateurs representing the Chicago District Golf Association 14.5-3.5 in the annual clash of the elite, the largest margin since the amateurs prevailed by the same score in 2008. The pros hadn't enjoyed such a one-sided match since a 12-3 win in 1997.

"It feels pretty good to be on the winning side," Ruth Lake head pro and team captain Mark Labiak said. "I liked my squad the first time (June 12) and I liked my squad the second time."

The six pro teams swept the front nine of the best-ball competition beginning with Oak Park's Carson Solien and Old Elm's Bret Leon scoring a 2 and 1 victory over the amateur duo of Kevin Economos, Oak Park's club champion, and Glenn Przybylski of Sanctuary in New Lenox.

That set the tone. There's a point at stake on the front, another on the back, and a third for the overall match, and the 6-0 lead the pros proved impossible to overcome.

"Being up 6-0 after the front is definitely a nice boost and to know we made that front turn in a winning fashion," Solien said. "It gives you a little bit of a cushion heading into the back, but you never let down."

Three IPGA teams swept their match – Eric Ilic (Merit C) and Tim Streng (Wildcat Golf Academy), Dakun Chang (Twin Orchard CC) and Steve Orrick (CC of Decatur), and Roy Biancalana (St. Andrews G&CC) and Travis Johns (Medinah CC).

“It definitely sets the momentum and gets you going,” said Skokie director of instruction Garrett Chaussard of the early lead.

“There were birdies and eagles flying everywhere,” Labiak said.

More than half of the CDGA’s points came from Ruth Lake’s Drew Shepherd and Inwood’s Trent Wallace. After dropping the out match, 2 and 1, the pair rallied on the back nine to claim the in match, 3 and 2, and the overall tilt, 1 up.

“Some clutch putts kept us in it and within striking distance,” said Wallace, the 2018 CDGA Player of the Year and a recent graduate of Illinois State.

“You don’t get to play in many tournaments like this, and when you get the opportunity, it’s obviously a no-brainer to play in it,” Wallace added following his second Radix Cup appearance. “I’ve had a lot of fun both years.”

The all-Bloomington pairing of Logan Stauffer and Rob Wuethrich scored a point for the amateurs.

“Any time you get to play in this tournament, it’s an accomplishment,” Stauffer said. “Just being a first-timer and learning the ropes, it was just neat to be able to come out here and experience the competition level and the friendliness aspect of the whole day.”

“There’s a lot of good Bloomington talent,” added Wuethrich, who sparked a back-nine charge with an eagle on No. 10. “It’s a good honor to be able to play in this and say we’ve played in this event. Hopefully we can get back here again.”

The amateurs had won the previous two playings. Now the margin is 2-2 in the last four, and the pros lead 4-3 over the last seven years. Their 12-match victory streak at the start of the competition accounts for much of their 36-20-2 overall advantage.

Vince India was so close to a PGA Tour card, he could almost feel it in his wallet.

He was in contention for a high finish in the regular season finale on the Korn Ferry Tour, which given his season standing would get him the ticket to the big tour. He bogeyed the 16th hole. He birdied the 17th. Then he double-bogeyed the last and not only lost the PGA Tour card, but fell to 85th in the Korn Ferry standings. Only the top 75 advanced to the playoffs.

“I just did my best,” India said after detailing the disaster on the home hole.

He goes back to qualifying school, the best-case scenario a return to the Korn Ferry Tour.

Garrett Rank is the second Canadian to win the Western Amateur, following Jim Nelford in 1977. He was ready for the grind, having played three straight 36-hole days a fortnight ago between a tournament and U.S. Amateur qualifying. ... Rank failed to qualify for match play at the U.S. Amateur, his next-to-last tournament before NHL official training camp opens on Sept. 9. The Canadian Mid-Amateur will complete his season. ... Both Rank and runner-up Daniel Wetterich will receive exemptions into next year's Evans Scholars Invitational at The Glen Club. That will give Wetterich a chance to make a check, but Rank may be busy that weekend, as it comes in the middle of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

A gallery of about 300 attended the title match, and while that wasn't close to the thousands that roamed the Point in the 1970s and early 1990s, it was a knowledgeable crowd that got a kick out of someone closer to their age than that of their children winning the venerable title. ... The vibe from the membership favors a return visit, the friendship with the WGA rekindled after 11 years away. It wouldn't be a surprise to see the Point hosting every five or six years in the future. ... Rank's acceptance speech was as eloquent as they come, a departure from the short "thank you" speeches of younger players. ... Next year's Western Am is at Crooked Stick Golf Club in Carmel, Ind., where Rory McIlroy and Dustin Johnson won the WGA's BMW Championship in 2012 and 2016, respectively. It returns to the immediate Chicago area in 2021, the Glen View Club hosting for the first time since 1905. The club also hosted the 1899 inaugural. ...

Nobody from the Illinois contingent made the cup. Varun Chopra scored 142 and missed by two, Tommy Kuhl of Morton was at 143, Jeff Doty of Carmel was at 144, Wisconsin standout Jordan Hahn of Spring Grove scored 145, and Andrew Price of Lake Bluff and Trent Wallace of Joliet totaled 146. Brendan O'Reilly of Hinsdale was high man among Illinoisans at 148.
