The Buzz

Illinois golf loses three notables

The calendar is too often cruel. So it has been over the winter, with news that three stalwarts of the golf community, two of them brothers, have left us.

Longtime CDGA volunteer and board member Lorraine Scodro died March 18. The 88-year-old golf lover was a familiar face at local amateur tournaments, volunteering for a variety of tasks. She was also a member of the Illinois Golf Hall of Fame Selection Committee, wise in her counsel.

Scodro, of Orland Park, was a member of Midlothian Country Club, which brought her into contact with CDGA officials. A bond was quickly formed. She was in the first group of women to join the CDGA board in 1995.

"Lorraine was a down-to-earth person with a good soul, and she will be missed by her family and everyone she came to know," said former CDGA executive director Denis Davenport.

Added CDGA roles staffer Jodi Ciotti, "Lorraine was considered the CDGA's staff mother. She looked out for all of us. She saw me through many happy times and some really hard times. She was my confidant, a loving mother figure, but most importantly an amazing friend."

Scodro is survived by four children, 12 grandchilddren, and a legion of friends.

James Hansberger died two months earlier, on Jan. 20. He was the last survivor of the four brothers who built Ram Golf's predecessor firms up beginning in the 1950s, though the name wasn't created until they merged Bristol, Sportsman and Kroydon Golf into one company in 1967.

His brother Al Hansberger, 98, died in St. Charles last Oct. 25. He and his brother Lyle joined forces in golf club manufacturing and were soon joined by James and Bob.

James Hansberger, 88, had been living in Winter Springs, Fla., but it was when he was an Oak Brook resident that Ram was at its peak. He served as president of Ram, while Al, Bob and Lyle innovated, sold and cajoled. At one point, world No. 1 Tom Watson was their lead player on tour, but they also had Nick Price, Nancy Lopez and Gary Player in their stable at various times, using everything from Tommy Armour 845 irons to the famed Zebra putter. The company was broken up several years after they repurchased it from Colgate-Palmolive, but the club division lives on at Tommy Armour Golf and the ball division goes on under the TaylorMade name.

The four brothers were inducted into the Illinois Golf Hall of Fame in 1997.

Finally, golf is on a roll(back)

If you are reading this, you probably play golf.

You buy your clubs. You buy your golf balls. You pay your green fees or club membership.

You are, in the course of a year, inundated by advertising from golf equipment companies large and small. You hear the pitches that this ball is longer, that this club is straighter, that this glove provides a surer grip.

You watch golf on television, at least a little. You see the pros playing the brands that are advertised, from ball to club to glove.

If you are smart – and our readers are! – you know that what they are playing and what you are playing are identical in name only.

Bifurcation has been with us, shoved under the carpet like a dust bunny discovered just before company arrives, for decades.

The recent announcement by the United States Golf Association and the R&A to create a model local rule for the golf ball – they want to lessen the distance the pros and top amateurs hit it – makes bifurcation official. One set of rolled-back ball specs for them, and another set, the current set, for all of us.

It'll amount to about 15 to 20 yards, go the estimates. So pros will hit a club more into greens. Poor babies.

The idea is not so much to prevent players from driving greens in the style of Rory McIlroy at the match-play at Austin Country Club, but to negate the need for courses to keep adding yardage to keep up with the McIlroys of the world. (The green jackets at Augusta no doubt wish this move had come about a few years ago, before they spent a fortune to buy enough land from neighboring Augusta Country Club to extend the 13th tee.)

Predictably, this has divided equipment manufacturers and much of the rest of the golf world. Instant option bifurcation, if you will.

McIlroy is for it, and why not, when you can fit it to the moon.

The loudest voice was Titleist's. David Maher, CEO of Acushnet, parent of Titleist, said, "The proposal of golf ball bifurcation is in many respects a solution in search of a problem. Unification is a powerfully positive force in the game, and we believe that equipment bifurcation would be detrimental to golf's long-term well-being."

The Acushnet release quoting Maher included this: "In addition, multiple versions of golf ball models in the market would be confusing to golfers."

Pardon? The latest USGA conforming ball list has 78 balls with the name Titleist on them. There are 18 models of the Pro V1 and 16 of the Pro V1x, along with various models of the Pro-Feel, Velocity, AVX, VG3, Gran X, Tour Speed, HVC, Tour Soft and TruFeel. Acushnet also makes the Pinnacle brand, with five models, and the Union brand, with two more models.

That's 85 different balls made by Acushnet.

Bridgestone, Callaway, Wilson, Srixon, Taylor-Made, Volvik, and all the others have similar variety.

If you think about it, bifurcation is already here. That ProV1x that someone pegs on the first tee at Augusta National in a few days is one of the limited-distribution models you won't find in the pro shop. Just as there's a difference between the Ferrari rolled onto a Formula 1 track and the Ferrari you can drool over in a showroom, there's a difference in golf balls.

The manufacturers are selling the mystical notion of equality, when there's no such animal, and hasn't been in decades.

If anything, adoption of this rule – and the USGA and R&A will use it in the championships, guaranteed – will give the ball makers another avenue to pursue. Come 2026, they'll be able to say, "Use the balls only the pros play," and then sell a dozen for a premium over and above what they'll sell a dozen regular-issue balls for.

Reports indicate most of the big guys, including Acushnet, already have their research and development departments far along in making the rollback ball. In some cases, patents have been applied for.

If that doesn't work, Acushnet can always turn back the clock and make the Titleist Professional 90 and 100 again. It was the ball that couldn't be improved upon until, like magic, the ProV1 came along. But you knew that.

ILLINOIS GOLFER COVER STORY

Dreams of glory

Four local kids off to Augusta National for Drive Chip & Putt

BY TIM CRONIN

REPORTING FROM MEDINAH, ILLINOIS

Imagine you're a kid again, and you like golf, and along comes a competition that involves only three things: driving, chipping, and putting.

And the reward, if you're really, really good and advance from the first stage to the second stage to the third stage, and then win that third stage, is a trip to Augusta National Golf Club the following spring.

Welcome to the magic world of Drive, Chip and Putt. Derived from the Illinois PGA's Youth Skills Challenge, DCP's been around for a decade now.

On Sunday, four youngsters from the Chicago area will take part in this year's competition. They've been in Augusta for a couple of days, with a celebratory dinner and other activities, but now comes the test: two drives, two chips and two putts – on the 18th green, no less – for glory.

The Fab Four are Emory Munoz, 8, of Lockport, William Comiskey, 11, of Hinsdale, Ben Patel, 13, of North Aurora, and Martha Kuwahara, 15, of Northbrook. Kuwahara is a repeater, having qualified last year, while the others – and their parents – are making their first trip to Augusta.

Munoz, who plays out of Cog Hill, has a natural swing that repeats and fires the ball straight.

He's not had a lesson, and if he keeps swinging like that, won't need one. While he led from start to finish, the difference in his Boys 7-9 age group last year was the phenomenal first chip he produced on the first green of Medinah No. 3. It stopped three inches from the cup.

"The driving – it is the best part of my game," Munoz said. He proved that with one swing on a Medinah simulator, smacking a short iron within a few feet of the cup on a course displayed on the screen.

Munoz, like the other qualifiers, received an invitation in the mail similar to those that are sent to Masters and Augusta National Women's Amateur contestants, with the fancy engraving. His parents Chuck and Katie are probably more thrilled about that than Emory, but at the start of March, he couldn't wait.

"I'm going to really try my best and be competitive against other players," he said.

Comiskey, who has scored as low as 69 in the U.S. Kids World Championship, won his spot in the Boys 10-11 bracket in a playoff, beating Griffin Michalak of Wood Dale with a wonderful putt. Naturally, he thinks that's the most important part of golf, but he's a fine chipper as well.

"I just want to soak in the whole experience," Comiskey said. "I don't have any expectations for myself. I want to enjoy it as much as I can. I want to be on live TV and all that. It's just amazing."

Comiskey is also a Cog Hill regular, taking lessons from teacher Kevin Weeks.

"Before I went to him, my putting wasn't that good," Comiskey said. "Now my expectations are to at least two-putt every green. The biggest thing he taught me was I bring the club too far back and up. You're supposed to bring the club back along the ground, like a broom."

Patel's summer hangout is Black Sheep, the private male-only club near Sugar Grove. "My dad knows a couple guys there, so he ended up joining there," he said. More recently, he practiced indoors on the specialties needed to succeed in Drive, Chip and Putt.

"I'm hitting more drivers than I normally would, putting a little more," Patel said. "It's going to be pretty fast and firm chipping and putting. The driving will be pretty normal."

The rainstorm that interrupted the Augusta

National Women's Amateur might slow the 18th green down only a hair, given the club's use of the SubAir system, which was invented by former superintendent Marsh Benson.

Patel's best score at Black Sheep is 68, and he's scored 69 in tournament play. So his game, like Comiskey's, is all-around solid, but he knows Drive, Chip and Putt is different.

"This is only nine shots," he noted.

And only six in the final. Two drives, two chips, two putts – the latter of varying distances to a cup on the upper tier of the 18th green and then to the traditional Sunday pin placement.

All that, Kuwahara knows. She also knows the pressure, having felt it last year, finishing ninth in the field of 10. That's why she was so thrilled to advance to this year's competition as well.

"I'm even more excited than last year," Kuwahara said. "This year I know what to work on – my mental game. So I feel I can perform a lot better than last year, so I'm more excited.

"I've been working on focusing on only me and not worrying about the audience, because that's what made me nervous last year. It made my hands shake. Last year I felt I putted the best, even though my hands were shaking."

Kuwahara's finished fifth in the U.S. Kids Girls, 12th in the IMG junior and took fourth in an AJGA tournament last year, and was part of last year's third-place finish by Glenbrook North in the IHSA Class 2A championship, testimony her game is stout. But those tournaments were played in relative solitude. The DCP has a large gallery, to say nothing of the live Golf Channel coverage. Hence, the work with teacher Chris Oe-

Chicago's Top Finishers

Since the Drive Chip & Putt Championship began in 2014, 23 Chicago-area players have competed, and three have won. Here's a look at our top-four finishers at Augusta National.

hlerking on the mental side of the game.

"I don't think I'll have any nerves or feel I'm going to faint," Kuwahara said. "I did last year."

Her best score is a 6-under 66 at The Glen Club, from about 6,060 yards.

All four of Chicagoland's representatives want to be professionals someday. There's really no reason to think this can't happen some day. Drive, Chip and Putt is proving to be an indicator of overall excellence in the game. Little girls who competed in it, some of them winning it, are showing up in high-level amateur golf. The boys will be along soon as well.

That's down the line for our Fab Four. This weekend, they're at Augusta, which is reward enough.

Illini's Wang 14th in ANWA

FROM IG NEWS SERVICES
REPORTING FROM AUGUSTA, GEORGIA

Illinois fifth-year senior Crystal Wang finished in a tie for 14th in the Augusta National Women's Amateur, scoring 3-over 75 at Augusta National Golf Club on Saturday after playing the first two rounds at even par.

Wang, of Diamond Bar, Calif., added a second-round 2-over 74 to her opening 2-under 70 at Champions Retreat near Augusta to make the grade to play the final round at the home of the Masters. She missed the cut last year.

Saturday's adventure included birdies on two of Augusta's par 5s, Nos. 8 and 15, and five bogeys, including at the last.

In the second round, starting on No. 10, Wang was 5-over after five holes, but went bogey-free over the last 13 holes of the round to post a two-day total of 144, securing her spot for Saturday, just three strokes above the cut of 3-over 147.

She birdied No. 18 in the second round to post a back nine score of 40, and then birdied the final two holes of her round on No. 8 and No. 9 to post a front nine score of 34.

Wang, a three-time all-Big Ten honoree with eight top-20 finishes in nine starts for Illinois this year, is one of three Big Ten golfers who played on Saturday, joined by Michigan's Monet Chun and Ohio State's Caley McGinty.

Stanford's Rose Zhang, while stumbling early in the final round, beat Georgia's Jenny Bae on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff to add to her laurels.

Zhang had led the tournament by five strokes at 13-under going into the final round.
